GREAT BRITAIN.

LONDON, April 17.—All the Ministers are in town; also all the Liberal leaders, except Gladstone, who is at Hawarden, where John Bright is visiting him. Special attention is being given to the composition of the new Ministry, but there has been no formal consultation with the Liberals. Candidates to fill the places are numerous. The general impression is that Gladstone's Premiership is inevitable, unless he should refuse the office. The position and influence of the advanced Liberals, distinguished from the Moderates or Whigs, seems likely to be very strong.

THE MISSING ATLANTA.

No information has been obtained of the training ship Atlanta, received by Wednesdays as many vessels of the Mediterranean fleet as can be spared will join in the search.

RUSSIA.

POISON OF THE Czar's DINING-TABLE.

PARIS, April 17.—The L'Univers published a telegram from St. Petersburg stating that poison was recently discovered in a dish on the Czar's dining-table.

PARDONS.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 17.—The Czar, at the instance of General Gribel, Chief of the Executive Commission, has pardoned those students, convicted at Kharhoff, of complicity with the revolutionists. The Czar says the pardons have made a deep impression on the students in Kharhoff University.

POISON FOR SIBERIA.

LONDON, April 17.—It is said the prisoners at the notorious Siberian prison have been through a severe a fever and many have died. A Londoner, who was paying a visit to the factory, had a severe attack of fever and was taken to a hospital, where he was treated and recovered.

SNOW-STORMS.

The Province of Groningen has been blockaded for months by unprecedented snow-storms and numerous deaths of persons overtaken by storms have occurred. Many villages are stricken for food.

GERMANY.

BERLIN, April 17.—The Budget Committee has pronounced the petition of the paper-makers for the imposition of a duty on rags exported from Germany to be unsatisfactory to the German Parliament.

THE ANTI-SOCIALIST LAW.

BERLIN, April 17.—The Reichstag to-day commenced its debate on the proposal of the bill for the renewal of the anti-Socialist law, and rejected amendments of Socialists to the effect that the abrogation of some clauses of the bill, and the substitution of others, were to be left to the discretion of the Reichstag. The bill, however, was passed.

THE CARS.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Coronet Petit to-day had an audience with the Czarina, who is to the Emperor what the Queen is to the King. The Czarina, however, is not the Queen of the Empire, but the Empress of the Russian Empire.

THE CARS.

CHICAGO, April 17.—The following dispatch was received at the Czarina's residence:

ITALY.

NOT RESPONSIBLE.

ROME, April 17.—In the Italian Chamber to-day, President Cairoli informed the members of the Chamber of the arrival of the Italian naval forces to Tripoli, which was ordered by the local police authorities. The Central Government disavowed the proceedings of the local authorities, and directed the order of expulsion to be revoked.

THE WEEK.

ENGLISH POLITICS.

Cable Special to The Tribune.

LOWDON, April 17.—The question of the Federation almost monopolizes public attention. It is believed that Lord Beaconsfield is to resign immediately on the arrival of the Queen whenever he receives the Standard consignment as creating a dead-lock, but nobody outside the Cabinet knows positively what decision was taken on Wednesday. The sphinx affects mystery to the last, he pleading that constitutional obligations compelled him to acquiesce in the Queen with his determination before the public, thus leaving the most favored party journals ignorant of his intentions. Since the Queen has hastened her departure to the north, he has completely abandoned the cause.

THE CARS.

A Gale at Buffalo Causes a Smash-Up Among Grain-Carriers.

THE RECENT GALES.

The disastrous results of the southwest and northeast gales of the past week have only in a measure become known to the public. Scarcely a vessel has arrived here within the past twenty-four hours that does not bear evidence of a severe struggle with the elements. The evidence is principally of dislodged deck-lights, broken light-bars, and demoralized canvas. Thus every statement previously made of the violence of the wind and fearful weight of the seas is fully confirmed, and one can wonder that the survivors of the wrecks were not more numerous.

The southwest gale of Wednesday was felt here to an annoying extent, because of the vast quantities of dirt that were hurled through the space. Of the gale from an easterly direction during the night of Friday, the 12th, portions of the Cornelia, Chicago, have very little, because this section appears to have been barely involved in the elemental disturbance. There was an abundance of rain, but the wind-force did not reach to this end of the lake. The storm appears to have been centered between the two islands, and the effect of the gales seems to indicate the velocity of the wind could not have been less than forty miles per hour on the water, and instead of rain, a blinding fall of sleet and snow was experienced. Following so quickly on the southwest gale, the wind-force of this day, however, for such it appears to have been, toward the lower end of the lake—caused a heavy and dangerous cross-swell, that broke upon the decks of vessels almost inceasurably when they remained within the limits of the storm center. Capt. Clark of the schooner Maria Martin, Cornelia, says that the seas were the worst he ever experienced. The waves lifted their crests fully four feet above the mizzen boom of his vessel, or to a height of twenty-five feet above the main deck line. The seas were very high on this occasion, once in 1882 particularly, during my experience as a navigator of the lakes," said Capt. Clark to THE TRIBUNE yesterday, "but then they were in long, regular swells, moving directly in with the wind, whereas those of Thursday night and Friday were broken and crossed, and came tumbling upon the deck of the Cornelia from every imaginable quarter. I am free to say that such a gale as this has not been experienced in any previous gale."

Capt. Clark added that the wind and snow continued upon the sea and air, and the gale was still in progress when he was compelled to leave the lake.

SOCIETY TOPICS.

An American girl in Paris, anxious to interest herself in entertainments, hit upon the idea of a "soap-supper party." The rooms found tables finished with soap and water, and clay pipes gaily bedecked with ribbons, and they vied with each other in the agreeable pastime of blowing bubbles. The more serious business of eating and dancing followed.

Some women are very amusing as studies, when they "go shopping." There is the woman who always drops her purse, forgets her pattern, and can't remember the name of the shopkeeper. Isaac W. Bangs, 315 State.

Among the most successful of the recent openings was that at the elegant military emporium of Mrs. E. M. Ward, No. 10 Madison street, on Wednesday, and Thursday last. On entering the eye was arrested by a beautiful pyramid of flowers surrounded by a floral border, and the interior was fitted to the tasteful and brilliant appearance of the entire establishment. Flowers, the counterpart of those that spring unlooks to paint the landscape, were in great variety, and were exhibited in profusion. Trimmed and untrimmed hats and bonnets in original designs, and carefully dressed stockings, were on every hand. A trimmed bonnet from famous French milliner, beautiful in shape, with crown embroidered in gold, and a lace, passion flower, and wreath of dainty buttercups, was very rich and effective, and was at $40. Another a Norman cap, in yellow and black, with a lace border, and a small bow, and a lace trim, was tasteful and dignified in appearance. An evening bonnet composed entirely of flowers was one of the handsomest in the shop. The prices of these fashions have many South as well as West Side admirers.

The most interesting musical event of this week will be the production for the first time, at Haverly's Theatre, of a new musical drama, "The Rival Cantineers," the text by Mrs. Alexander Kirkland, and the music by Mr. James Gill, of this city, in the performance of which a well-appointed orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Louis Falk, and a large and efficient chorus will assist. The individual cast will be as follows:

Marie De La Faye, M. H. Devereux, Miss Barrymore, Mr. H. Hart, Mr. F. W. Wren, Mr. B. Larson, Mr. B. D. Johnson, Mr. E. Macrae, Mr. J. McDonough, Mr. H. H. Moore, Miss Anna Kehill, Miss Louise D'Orsay, Miss Jessie Bartlett, Miss Anna C. Moore, Mr. Louis Falk, Mr. M. Orlitz, Miss Anna Kehill, Lucy Ellis.

Those our readers may familiarize themselves with the story, we append a detailed outline of its situations: The scene of the opera is laid in France, on the borders of the Rhine and the Alps, in the time of the revolution. The first act takes place on the estates of the Baron D'Orsay, who has fled into Germany to join the Royalists under Condé, leaving behind an only sister, who acts as a medium between the Royalists at home and abroad, by causing to be conveyed the important intelligence necessary between the parties. At the period in question she has an appointment with her brother at the "old farmhouse" of her foster-mother, near the banks of the Rhine. She arrives at the appointed hour, and the meeting takes place, as soldiers burn the scene. Her brother makes his escape on her favorite horse that she has ridden, and she, compelled to disguise herself in the simple peasant dress of her foster-mother's daughter, attracts the attention of a young soldier named Victor, in reality the Marquis De La Faye, a French nobleman in disguise, who has cast his fortunes with the Republican party, and, hearing that the army is about to cross the Rhine, she entreats to be allowed to accompany them even as a vassal. This cannot be done, as the experiment is already supplied with a boy and a girl, called Patrice. The comic incidents are founded on the rivalry of the two. Louise, by her superior tact, succeeds in getting Patrice out of the way, and through the influence of Victor is elected "daughter of the regiment" in her stead. Her beauty is soon noticed by the commanding officer, who is all the more anxious to have her in his service, and, although the young patrician is fully up to the mark, he is compelled to give up his claim to her, as he is regular diet. When she has recovered from the effects of the stomach-ache, it would be the best and most his case. I think the especially as come to Dr. Musgrave, and Dr. Williamson, before this meeting.

Monday last, Dr. Williamson, who was directed to go in a recommended little suffering chariot, was sent from him, and in his case, it is the best and most his case.
